who we are

English Herbal Medicines is a totally unique company.

Surrounded by its own registered organic<sup>1</sup> herb farm in Rutland in the centre of England, our manufacturing unit is the Country's only licensed medicines manufacturer<sup>2</sup> that has specialised in processing its own home-grown organic herbal medicine since its inception.

The company has grown out of two decades of environmental friendliness, including planting five thousand trees, installing ground source heating and raw material composting. All water used in process originates from our own artesian well, drawing water from beneath the organic land, before purification to pharmaceutical grade by 10 filtrations and reverse osmosis and without the use of any chemicals whatsoever. Packaging and printing has been kept to a minimum following design and execution to reduce our environmental footprint. English Herbal Medicines are the first to bring low "herb-mile" products to the UK medicines market.

The primary processing, finishing and dispatch facilities are capable of handling many thousands of units per day, under control of a tried and tested, robust, modern system, which ties in all aspects of quality control with complete traceability of every component, through every stage of process and literally from seed to customer!

our history

Our Rutland UK base is well known as one of the foremost manufacturers of practising medical herbalists' ingredients (mainly tinctures) and has for many years been one of the favoured suppliers of the National Institute of Medical Herbalists. During this time it has been visited by many top professional herbalists from all the over the world.

Following Directive 2004/24/EC, which puts herbal medicines into the same regulatory framework as conventional pharmaceuticals (The Medicines Act 1968, amended), the name English Herbal Medicines was granted by Companies House, to create a vehicle to preserve for the British public, future lawful access to the most important traditional medicines.

Since that time, the Company has worked with the UK Medicines Regulatory Authority (MHRA, Dept. of Health), to license fully "Traditional Herbal Registration (THR)" products. THRs are General Sales List herbal medicine products that are designed and permitted to be lawfully sold to the public.

the future

English Herbal Medicines continues to be committed to the research, development, registration and bringing to market of traditional, safe and effective herbal medicine, produced completely under our own control, in totally environmentally sustainable, and completely traceable ways, in which patient safety and environmental responsibility are always the prime concerns.

The Company has an intensive programme of working to bring to the retail market two dozen herbal medicine THR's over the next year or two.
